FILE-X HELPS GOP CANDIDATE SPREAD MESSAGE

(KING OF PRUSSIA, PA, 23 APRIL 2004) — FILE-X Document Imaging Services Inc. recently assisted a Central Pennsylvania Congressional campaign facing a tight deadline by digitizing printed information for quick and easy access.

Bill Lynch's campaign for the 17th Congressional District Republican Primary needed printed records containing phone numbers and e-mail addresses put into an electronic database.

"When we realized that we had too many records to input into a database ourselves, we turned to FILE-X," said Lynch's Communications Director, Jessica R. Towhey. "The company was able to turn it around quickly, which is what we needed. We enthusiastically recommend FILE-X to anyone in need of similar services."

FILE-X, with locations in Mechanicsburg and King of Prussia, PA, digitized the information and rendered it searchable using Optical Character Recognition technology.

"We have converted paper and microfilm to digital format for every industry out there, including politics," said Joe Fagan, Vice President of FILE-X. "From millions of pages to a few hundred, companies find that outsourcing their scanning needs gets the job done quicker, cheaper and more accurately."

"It's our goal to provide an alternative to pricey document imaging software and hardware," he said.

Established in 1996, FILE-X, is a full-service, solutions-oriented, document-imaging bureau. The company specializes in affordable conversions of both hardcopy paper documents and microfilm/fiche into non-proprietary digital images. FILE-X also supplies its customers with free-ware for search and retrieval of electronic files.

"We wish Gen. Lynch the best of luck in the primary," said Fagan. "We were glad to help out."
